

Date:

Volcano?

Editor: Washington has whispered for some time that Milton Eisenhower was responsible for Khrushchev coming to Washington. And Human Events, Sept. 23 issue, has confirmed the fact that Milton talked the President into the "hush-hush" invitation that has shocked the American people.

It was Milton's advice that led the President to recognize the Castro regime in Cuba in such indecent haste as to astonish Diplomatic Row. Because of that "haste," the State Department and the CIA are desperately trying to stop the lid on a volcanic explosion, building up in the Senate Security Committee—as its investigation has unearthed evidence proving massive infiltration of communists in Castro's government, with an active role played by the Central Intelligence, including a "benevolent nod" from Milton Eisenhower, who is supposed to be an expert in Latin American affairs.

Milton holds no elected official position in the government. He is a personal "appointee" of President Eisenhower, who says he always takes Milton's advice. By advising the President to extend an invitation to Khrushchev and keeping it "hush-hush" from the people, he proves himself the pure socialist thinker that the Soviet leaders approve.

It is no wonder that Dulles complained many times: "We have always been a people who refused to accept abasement, but our government has forced us, as a nation, to lower our standards." The Svengali influence Milton has on President Eisenhower, reached its peak when the American people were asked to show "respect" for this Soviet gangster, in his great propaganda trip to our country.

—EDNA BELL SEWARD
Oakland.

Ag 2
X-Pol 4 Cuba
X-Per 2
M. EISENHOWER
X-Per 2
L. B. SEWARD